Richmond's Tobacco Trade

We give prominence this morning to ommunication which we think is well worthy of the careful consideration of the tobacco trade of Richmond. It speaks out in meeting as to the causes of the decline of Richmond as a tobacco market and suggests steps by which she may not only regain her former rank as a tobacco centre, but command a larger and more profitable trade in the great staple than she ever enjoyed. The author of the communication is thoroughly posted in respect of the vital questions he discusses. The communication is as tollows: To the Editor of the Dispatch : The fact that the tobacco market of this city is now very dull can be traced in a great measure to the actions of her own manufacturers and dealers, whose interest it should be to build up this trade and all ommercial interests of the city. The sual observer in the tobacco trade, most casual observer in the tobacco trade, as well as outsiders can see that out tobacco business has greatly changed in the past decade. It is not so much to the point to tell how Hichmond has been losing her trade as to point out a remedy, and that remedy is in concerted action, and not without individual effort. What has Richmond lost? will be asked. The answer is—first, her order business, both proved if it could be proved and admitted for the sake of argument were admitted for the sake of argument that we are doing as much to-day as in some former years, this would be no satisfactory solution of the question; for it must be borne in mind that while we are com-paratively standing still other tobacco markets in and out of the State have been detriment. Yet, while we are forced to acknowledge the progressive spirit of former tributary markets, and rejoice in their prosperity, especially those within the borders of our State, we have been too slow their prosperity, especially mose within an borders of our State, we have been too slow ourselves, not thinking that we would some day have formidable rivals in towns of smaller population, less capital, and fewer railroad and manufacturing facilities. Formerly we never thought of Danville, Va., as our rival in the markets ook at her to-day. Note the Richmond Dispatch's Danville letter of the 10th in-Dispatch's Danville letter of the 10th in-stant, which says that the statistical report for General Imboden's publication shows that in 1885 Danville received more money that in 1885 Danville received more money than any market in the State for tobacco, although Richmond sold 3,000,000 pounds more than Danville. We understand Rich-mond sells a great deal of dark and com-mon grades, but there is no reason why she should not sell more bright and dark too. But the point is that Danville has found a market or markets for all her goods, and Richmond, with all her facilities, has not. Danville has made other markets around Denville has made other markets around her contribute to her prosperity and welfare, and Richmond has been self-satisfied and spathetic. Danville is reaching out far and wide in all directions, extending her leaf and manufacturing business, and, comparatively, Richmond is doing nothing but waiting for something to turn up. It is true that the upland markets get their bright tobaccos from first hands, direct from the pianter, which is an advantage, but it is equally true Richmond should not be contented with what loose tobacco and other trades that comes this way naturally as the nearest market, and try to handle direct from the planter that which is a little further off from base. There was a time when planters would have gladly shipped here direct. The trade did not encourge this or foster it, and now we get our brights second hand. Outside order men go to fountain head and buy, and Richmond follows suit in self-defence, and thus the trade solicited and unsolicited, goes away from Richmond. It is a mere matter of time when Baltimore, with her grasping and growing population, will be a rival market for bright tobaccos, and Baltimore to-day is locking to that very point by increasing her railroad facilities, and Danville is helping Baltimore and herself, and is right. If our own nanufacturers and order-men persist in sending their orders and buyers to the upland markets, there is no wonder that leading manufacturers outside do the same. They agree there must be some advantage in it; at the same time this is but robbing Richmond by her own people, and is at best poor poticy. We have sealed samples, guaranteed bonded inspections, and all that, so that a man may buy with confidence by sample; but that has helped us but liftle. The Danville drummer takes his satchel and trunk of types selected by himself and goes out into the world, old and new, and to-day secures an order with as much confidence and case as we would by any sealed and waxed tag and red-tape sample from this city, even though the former's sample has her contribute to her prosperity and wel-right here. Get the tobacce here, buy it here, manufacture and sell it here. Let Danville and other markets have their profits and take their lesses, but do not compete with other markets only to build up a rival market to the detaiment of Richmond's interests.

The writer cannot help recalling the tact used by the new mammeth establishment of Blackwell's, in Durham, Large shipmests of tobacce have gone from here and other places to that market; but scaled sample or not, when Blackwell bought it was on condition that Durham warehouses got their fees. "Ship it to Durham and let it pass through her merehants' and banks' hands and I will buy your tobacce "was the inducement, and thus in a great measure the trade of Durham was fostered and built up. If Richmond merchants and manufacturers go away from home to buy instead of bringing and Inducing tobacce to come here when they can they must not wonder that others will likewise seek the same market. It was once other wise. Orders came here from all parts of this country and the world. Now there are few orders on the market, and as to brokers they have dwindled down to two or three who do any business of note. And how long these will last ne one knows. Brokers camnot be encouraged unless protected by the the trade. They cannot solicit business to buy here when it knows our orders are filled elsewhere. Our receipts of West Virginia tobacce direct from planters hands have been large for years, due much to the effort of two live commissionhouses. Cincinnati and Lynebburg want this trade. Now, does Richmond want so go to those cities to buy Virginia does a fart a few brokers to buying in those artests and send your men to start the boom, and it will be a matter of time only when we will get the West Virginia crop at meand hands. It is well enough to say it Richmond be a jobbung market like New Test, but we are now so, not from choice we will get the West Virginia crop at meanly, but because we have not taken advantage of our opportunities to build up son neerchant in consequence always has a based line to sell this hard stock. The truth, litt, is apparent that the smart Danville roker has got all the milk out of the cocontout and Ri-hmond can't digest all the bare meat till the tobacco world gets hard run and has to buy here on advanced prices. This is how and why we have secumulations of so much hard stock at times.

It is only when a grant of tobacco becomes scarce and the market advances that Richmond has a chance to sell accumulated stocks, and, as is frequently the case, the orders having first gone to the upland markets, the orders are filled by their buyers here. Instead of leading, we are already behind, and the first expression of Danville's leading Richmond and making claim to be the first expression of Danville's leading Richmond in the Dispatch of the 10th of June. The writer does not love Danville less. He has interest there. But he loves Richmond more, and hence this erude reminder. It is regretted that no shier pen has long since noted in a proper manner our long neglect of our own interest. There is neglect of our own interest. There is nothing in this to detract from Danville's interest, for all that has been said must be to her praise rather than otherwise. D.

Snubbing Blaine.

Mr. BLAINE's experience in thrusting imself into English politics has been pretty much that of the man who interfered in the fight between husband and wife. Both sides in England have turned upon the Plumed Knight and snubbed him post cruelly. LABOUCHERE, one of Mr. GLADSTONE'S most efficient lieutenants and a Liberal of the most prenounced type, sup. plements the bammering the Tory organ have given BLAINE with the following:

"Mr. Blame would do well to be more areful in his utterances respecting Lorsalisbury and others. The English do no alisbury and others. like America's presidential candidates to lecture English statesmen, of whatever cou plexion their polities may be. My advicto the Irish in America is to be exceeding! rareful just now, and to keep as quiet a they possibly can."

But, after all, it is left for the Boston Herald to make the "unkindest cut" of Il The Herald says : "It is omte possi bie, however, that the magnetic statesman was thinking more of beloing himself that of helping GLADSTONE and PARNELL." We renew the suggestion that the mag netic man would better take to the woods

Attention is called to the fact that the cholera reports given to the press in Venice to not agree with the reports concerning the ravages of the disease received from Venice by the authorities of the Marine Hospital Bureau at Washington. The presreports show a daily average of 20 new ases and 10 deaths. The information of the Bureau is that the daily average for the two weeks ending June 6 was 41 new cases and 22 deaths, and that on one day in that period the record was 61 new cases and 36 deaths. The death rate is therefore over 50 per cent. It is also stated that the disease is spreading to points on the Austrian frontier which are connected with Venice by railway. There is a difference of opinion smong medical men as to whether th cholera will reach this country during the summer, but there is no room for doubt that it would be safest for all of our cities to "clean up."

crats in Congress have a chance to improve greatly their record by refusing to be drawn into the partisan game of brag and attending strictly to business. Certainly the Democrats should not engage in partisan discussions for the mere sake of discussion, and in order to please the Republicans. But, on the other hand, they should not allow themselves to be built dozed into silence when the interests of truth and right demand that they should speak. If they are to pursue the oyster policy because the Republican South haters would endeavor to make capital out of their utterances they would as well turn Congress over to the Republicans at

In the last number of the "Publications, of the American Economic Association' Professor EDMOND J. JAMES, Ph. D., of the University of Pennsylvania, discusses "The Relation of the Modern Municipality to the Gas Supply." He treats at length of the Philadelphia and the Richmond gas-works, and remarks of the latter: "It is safe to say that the management of the public works in Bichmond will compare favorably, from any point of view, with that of any private works in the country.'

PETERSBURG.

Rumor of Criminal Charges—Big Sale

[Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.]
JUNE 12, 1886.

It is reported that the Republicans contemplate preferring criminal charges against one or more of the judges of the late muncipal election, alleging fraud. On what grounds they stand is not made public. Their actions in all this matter are kept very quiet. It is understood, however, that every possible effort will be made to upset the result of the election.

The largest sale of peanuts made in Petersburg for many years was effected this week by one of our principal dealers. It is understood that the sale aggregated 1,600 bags of shelled peas, weighing 250 pounds per bag. The sale, it is said, was made to a firm in the Northwest.

It is proposed to have the new music hall in this city to be built by the Petersburg Musical Association large erough to accommodate fifteen hundred or two thousand people, five hundred singers, and an orchestra of fifty persons. The requisite amount of money, it is believed, will be realized this year.

The experts of manufactured tobacco this week have been rather light, aggregating between 35,000 and 46,000 pounds.

It is stated that a petition is being circulated here asking the Governor to pardon yoing Enroughty, who was recently convicted in our Hustings Court of forgery and sentenced to five years' imprisonment in the pentituritary. There were some mitigating circumstances connected with the case.

The dulness in society circles during the post week was broken Wednesday night by a marriage, Mr. James Merryman and Miss Mattle Rhodes being the happy couple.

[Special telegram to the Dispatch.] Scuta Boston, Va., June 12.- A desperate attempt was made last night to destroy this town. The 1:30 train had just arrived when some gentlemen who were pusca-gers upon it discovered the old prizery building, owned by Captain E. B. Jeffrees, to be on fire. This house was on Main street opposite the Halifaz Record build-ing at dituated in a block of small frame buildings. The alarm was blyen and buildings. The fames had made muchesdway, and the situation of the house placed the entire town in the greatest peril. The fire-company immediately static. The fre-company immediately statione men on the roofs of the nearest building and then directed its lawers to the burnin house. This they succeeded in partly tear-ing down. The heat was intense and caused much suffering.

Immediately adjoining the burning build ing is a house occupied as a bar-room. This, by real heroism of the firemen, who were scorebing from the flames, was kept seturated with water until the fire died out. The fire had been burning about half an hour when Mr. G. E. It was during the night, and n-blame is attached to the railroad employed-One of the unfortunate men saw the heav coal freight train approaching, of w there were several coming in succession but was unable to get off the track. Th Horrocks, both married. They were dis-covered by a track-walker in about three quarters of an hour after the occur-rence, and one man had gotten some distance from the place at which he was run over. Both of them had both legs amputated by the surgeons, and Smith died the next day. Horrocks is living and may recover. Horrocks is an Englishman, and was the champion coal-digger in the New-River district. He could dig more coal-than any ordinary three miners, yet he is than any ordinary three miners, yet he is small and of medium weight, which shows that there is science and art even in dig Verdict of Insanity.
